Additional Notes

Majors are required to take at least one course in each of the four following subfields of the discipline: American Government, Political Theory, Comparative Politics, and International Relations

- Students may distribute their remaining courses in the major as they see fit. However, students contemplating graduate work are encouraged to specialize appropriately in consultation with the department's faculty members.

- No more than two introductory (100-level) courses can be applied toward the major. Majors must complete at least three 300-level courses (from any subfields).

- No more than 6 credits in internship, independent study, and/or experiential courses (such as Model United Nations) may be used to satisfy the 30 credits in the major. Also, such credits may not be used to satisfy the distribution requirements in the four fields. Courses taken for Credit/No Credit may not be applied toward the major.

- POLSC 491, 492, and 493 are only for Political Science majors, with a 3.50 GPA in the major, who elect to complete the POLSC Honors Thesis.
